Intern

POSITION SUMMARY - You'll get hands-on experience right where the action is-learning retail sales, customer service and merchandise-related skills. This 12-week assignment is designed to give you a feel for the retail industry and the culture of Kmart.

QUALIFICATIONS - Junior status (in final summer before graduation); All majors considered; Strong academic performanc; Demonstrated leadership abilities; Team-building skills; Involvement in extracurricular activities; Dedication to Customer Service; Strong Communication skills; Permanent Employment Authorization/U.S. Citizen

RESPONSIBILITIES - Our management interns spend their time working in one of our Kmart retail stores, seeing first-hand what goes into a successful retail business. The internship program is divided into several phases, each lasting from a few days to a few weeks. You'll work directly with an Assistant Store Coach, developing merchandising and leadership skills. You'll rotate through various store functions including receiving, replenishment, loss prevention, in-store support and human resources. This rotation allows you to gain a broad view of the retail industry, all while having an impact on the successful operation and management of a Kmart store. Your training will include formal and informal evaluations. You'll be assigned several challenging projects which will allow you to apply what you've learned in the classroom to a business setting.

Kmart Retail Management Trainee

QUALIFICATIONS - Bachelor's degree in any major; Strong academic performance; Demonstrated leadership abilities; Involvement in extracurricular activities; Dedication to Customer Service; Permanent Employment Authorization/U.S. Citizen

RESPONSIBILITIES - You'll start in the Retail Management Development Program, a comprehensive 6 month program designed to develop talented associates into highly skilled managers capable of handling the various operations critical to the success of our stores. The Retail Management Development Program is made up of the following building blocks that are critical to leadership development:

In-Store Rotations - During the program, you'll rotate through all selling and non-selling areas of the store, such as receiving, replenishment, merchandising, in-store support, operations, human resources and loss prevention. You'll learn the skills required in each role but will also gain a macro view of how they all work together. As in all of our store management positions, you'll have to be prepared to work nights, weekends and holidays as needed

Mentor Relationship - Critical to your development will be relationships with high - performing managers and leaders at Kmart who have proven themselves as drivers of business performance and coaches and developers of people

Structured Development - You will receive structured training and development through multiple media. Technical and leadership skills will be delivered through on-line and hands-on experiences. As a final step in your training, you'll be given a special assignment where you're given management responsibilities for an area within the store, challenging you to apply the skills you've learned through the training program to real situations

CVC Job & Internship Fair / Graduate School Expo – February 10, 2010

Networking Opportunities - We've learned from our former trainees that the ability to interact with peers and proven leaders within the company is an important part of ongoing development; therefore, we ensure you have these opportunities. These interactions allow you to share common struggles and grow through shared experiences. Throughout the program, you'll receive periodic feedback from managers with whom you've worked.

CAREER PATH >> Management Trainee > Softlines Support Coach > Hardlines Support Coach > Sales Support Coach > Store Coach . We have a special procedure for college students. Please go to: www.searsholdings.com/careers/college, click on featured career, click on Kmart Retail Management Trainee or Kmart Retail Internship, click on apply, click on the state you will work in and upload your resume. It will then come to the recruiter and we can start the process.

The Graduate Institute of St. John's College offers a Master of Arts in Liberal Arts program designed to help students formulate and respond to fundamental questions about themselves and their world by reading and discussing with others the seminal works of the Western tradition. The readings, from Plato, Aristotle, Chaucer, the Bible, Rousseau, Marx, Einstein and others, are organized into five segments: Literature, Politics and Society, Philosophy and Theology, Mathematics and Natural Science, and History. Students must complete four of these five segments to earn the Master of Arts degree. All classes are small and discussion-based, and are offered during fall, spring, and summer terms. Classes are scheduled two nights a week in the evenings during the fall and spring, so it is possible to attend them while employed. The summer sessions, with classes held four days per week, are especially convenient for teachers. Founded in Annapolis, Maryland as King William's School in 1696, St. John's College is one of the oldest colleges in the country. The college is well-known for providing a "community of learning", dedicated to liberal education through the study of great books that themselves serve as the principal teachers of the program. The Graduate Institute is pleased to extend this opportunity to those looking for an advanced, interdisciplinary degree focused upon some of the most profound questions with which we, both as individuals and as a society, continue to grapple.

We are a nationally ranked MSW program for those interested in studying clinical social work, human services management, and community organization. Our exciting 60-credit master's degree is divided between 24 foundation credits and 36 advanced credits, where students can choose from a rich curriculum of advanced courses and become the leaders of tomorrow. We will educate you to face the challenges of the future; whether it is by helping adults and children struggling with emotional and adjustment issues, working side-by-side with community residents to improve their neighborhoods or guiding human service agencies to better serve the needs of their clients. In your advanced year, you have the choice between the clinical concentration and the Management and Community Organization concentration (MACO). It is also possible to combine the two in a course of study that allows for a primary and secondary concentration. In addition, you will choose a specialization or field of practice that will focus your work in a particular area of study within the concentration.
